The geological investigations of Robert Schoch and John Anthony West found water weathering on the sculpture pushing its creation back to at least 10,000 years ago to the age of Leo. Recent research also shows that the present carved head was originally that of the Lioness Mehit, the protector. Recent seismographs findings show a hollow chamber under the left paw where Edgar Cayce says lay the Atlantean Hall of Records.

It is considered the most important anthropological site for understanding daily life of this great civilization. Even though many of the tombs have been looted, what remains gives visitors a sense of the power and luxury of the Pharaohs and noblemen. Many of the tombs depict Ra's journey through the twelve stages or "hours" of the underworld.

Many of the high-ranking wives of the Middle Dynasties Pharaohs are buried here including Queen Nefertari (1290 – 1224 BCE), the beloved wife of Akhenaten.

This is highly honored as the place to communicate with the great blue god and founder of the Egyptian civilization, Osiris.

This was an ancient pilgrimage site for people all over the world to come for healing and to ask the high priests questions about their personal lives. In one of its seven chambers Isis is shown placing the recovered phallus on the body of her husband/brother Osiris so that she can be united again with her soulmate/twin flame.

Out of that union was born the divine child Horus. Osiris, Isis, and Horus were the divine Triad of Abydos and were offered the highest place of worship in Egypt. The temple is also famous for the hieroglyphic found on an arch that resembles either a helicopter, a submarine, or maybe an ancient UFO.

- 1 PM - 3 PM - The Stargate Channeling Meditation at the Private visit to the Osirion Temple. - 2 hours Stargate Meditation

It has been said that the Osirion belongs to the most ancient of days. It was created for the sole purpose of being an eternal place to connect to the divine source.

This sanctuary is located behind the temple of Abydos and its megalithic structures date back to predynastic Egypt. Named after the resurrected god Osiris, it bears no hieroglyphics except for a faded enigmatic Flower of Life that appears to have been burned into stones dating back at least 6,000 years.

The construction logistics pose a conundrum for today's engineers because the central section consists of two rectangular platforms surrounded by a deep moat cut into the stone with an underground chamber composed of giant blocks as large as those found in Giza.

- 8 AM - check-Out of the Jolie Ville Resort
- 10 AM visit the Dendera Temple Complex.

This is widely regarded as the most beautiful and best-preserved of the ancient temple sites. Established in the First Dynasty of the Old Kingdom, its true origins may date back to the beginning of human history. It contains multiple chapels or shrines with the main temple dedicated to the fertility goddess Hathor.

The Temple of Hathor is the largest and most impressive building in this religious complex. It was built on the ancient site of Ta-ynt-netert, meaning 'She of the Divine Pillar.' Its visually stunning hieroglyphs on the grand entrance and its interior walls depict scenes of sacrifices and worship to the Goddess.

Hat-hor means House of Horus, but she was also known as the consort of Ra. Many of Hathor's epithets link her to celebration. She is called the mistress of music, dance, wine, joy and sexuality. Often symbolized as a royal woman wearing a headdress of a sun disk between two cow horns – she is associated with being a combination of the cosmic and earthly mother of manifestation.

- Visit to the Old Crypts with its mysterious carvings of what appears to be a giant illumination device has been called the 'Dendera Light Bulb' In fact much evidence suggests that the Ancients created a now lost technology such as electricity and artificial lighting because there are no signs of fire or torch marks deep inside any temple chambers in the land.
- 2 PM check into the Nile Drive to Luxor and check-In the Nile Cruise
- 2 - 3 PM lunch on the Nile Cruise ship (All meals included on the cruise ship)
- 5 PM visit to the Great Temple of Luxor

Luxor has frequently been called the "world's greatest open-air museum."

Visitors enter along the ram-headed avenue of sphinxes towards the first pylon consisting of two towering stone columns marking the gateway to the grand temple. Formally known as the ancient capital of Thebes.

This was a glorious city dedicated to the great god Amun. Amun spoken as "Imn" meant "the hidden one" or "the one of invisible essence".

Amun and his wife, Mut who was associated with the primordial waters of Nu, from which everything in the world was born, and their son Khonsu, god of the moon, were worshiped as the divine family of the "Theban Triad" before being later replaced by Osiris, Isis and Horus.

As Thebes became the foremost city of ancient Egypt, Amun rose in importance, and became linked to the sun god Ra, thus creating the new 'Lord of the gods' Amun-Ra.

As the city lost its hold as a political and military capital during Greek and Roman times, it remained the vital religious center of Egypt. Known as "the city of the 100 gates", its impressive structures still stand while the other great cities of ancient Egypt, such as Memphis and Heliopolis, have fallen into ruin.

In ancient times it was called Ipet-isut, "the Place of the Most High". It was always a spiritual center until the end of antiquity.

- Visit at Karnak - The Sanctuary of Sekhmet

Walking north of the spectacular column hallway lay one of the most mysterious power spots in the temple complex, the Sanctuary to the Goddess Sekhmet.

As you enter the small chamber the black obsidian Lioness slowly emerges out of the darkness.

She has held reign over this private sacred space, unmoved for thousands of years. As you get accustomed to the dark some people begin to channel her wisdom or hear her strange melodic messages.

Its twin temples adorn the banks of the Niles with their impressive architecture and the brilliant colors from the original construction.

The left side show carved lotus flowers in honor of Sobek, the crocodile god of Upper Egypt, while the right side with carved papyrus honors Haroeris, "Horus, the wise and great of Lower Egypt".

Originally, the site was called Nubt, in Egyptian meaning "City of Gold". It was the center of the trade between the Nubian lands to the south and the Nile Valley to the north.

The cult of the crocodile god "Sobek, the satisfied", and Sobekemsaf, "Sobek, the Protector" date back to the earliest Egyptian dynasties, when he was prayed to for fertility, vegetation, abundant life.

As "Lord of the waters" he created the Nile that rose from his sweat. During Hellenistic times a combination of both gods, a falcon-headed crocodile, was worshiped as an oracular god. After which the temple was later dedicated to Apollo, the Greek god of prophecy.

Isis was the eternal queen of the land of Khemet and has become the most popular and enduring of all the Egyptian deities. The daughter of the earth god Geb and the sky goddess Nut, her divine lineage makes her kin to Osiris, Seth, and Hathor.

Because of Isis's selfless sacrifice she was portrayed as the devoted mother, wife, and protectress of the heart. She was also known as Weret-Kekau, "the Great Magus," for her healing power and Mut-Netjer, "Mother of the Gods". She was considered the mother of every pharaoh and the principal deity in the rites of the dead, also known as the magical healer, the one who cured the sick and resurrected the dead.

While Isis and Hathor both represented the divine feminine, Hathor was the female force of earthly pleasure, dance and the arts, while Isis was the goddess of love, loyalty, death, resurrection, transformation, and the connection to the highest sphere of cosmic mother.

Like the Eleusinian Mysteries of Greece, the cult of Isis grew into an international Mystery school promising immortality to her initiates. During Roman times her cult spread from England to Afghanistan. Some people claim her mystery teachings still remain with a secret group of followers.
